

New York Braces for Blizzard Amid Warnings of Closings and Hazards

By COLIN MOYNIHAN JAN. 25, 2015

Mayor Bill de Blasio said on Sunday that the storm approaching on Monday was likely to be one of the biggest to ever strike New York City, and he urged people to stay indoors to avoid powerful winds, low visibility and “treacherous” road conditions.

The National Weather Service, which issued a blizzard warning for the greater New York City area, forecast gusts of wind up to 50 miles per hour and snow accumulation of “at least one to two feet.”

But Mr. de Blasio said the storm could bring up to three feet of snow, beginning with flurries late Monday morning, and that the heaviest snowfall would probably come Monday night into Tuesday morning.

Schools will be open on Monday but are likely to close on Tuesday, Mr. de Blasio said. Alternate side of the street parking was canceled, along with the city's annual count of the homeless population, which had been scheduled for Monday night.

There is basically no snow. And the entire city is shut down.
Absurd.

BUST! After all that hype we get a run-of-the-mill snow storm.
NJ closed. Roads closed. School closed. Waste of time/resources! #Hype #Juno

After NY-based media inundates rest of U.S. with blizzardmania, & blizzard becomes bust, no wonder media not trusted & unwanted.
